1. The Constitution of the State of West Virginia made it the duty of the Legislature to foster and encourage __________, __________, ____________, and ____________ improvement.

2. If you were an incoming freshman at the West Virginia Agricultural College (now West Virginia University) in 1868, how much would your tuition have been if you were taking a schedule consisting of your primary classes?

Think Critically: The West Virginia Agricultural College was renamed West Virginia University in December 1868, representing the transition to a more encompassing field of higher education, in lieu of purely agricultural-based curricula. This transition coincides with transformation from one type of society to another in our country. Describe that transformation to include agrarian versus industry, technological advancements, transportation, and how the Gilded Age transformed the country with economic growth.
