1. Where did the constitutional convention for the proposed state of Kanawha take place?

2. Who called the convention to order? What county did he represent?

3. What was Mr. Stuart’s opinion on Mr. Van Winkle’s proposal to nominate permanent officers of this convention? What did he propose instead? Was the motion to raise a committee eventually approved?

Think Critically: What was the purpose of the constitutional convention? Why do you suppose “Kanawha” was not chosen as the name of the newly formed state? Who was responsible for proposing “West Virginia” as the name of the state?
In pursuance of elections held on the fourth Thursday day of October, 1861, under authority of an Ordinance to provide for the formation of a new State out of a portion of the territory of this State, passed August 26th of that year by the Convention which reorganized the government of the State of Virginia, the Convention to frame a Constitution for the proposed new State of Kanawha assembled in the United States Courthouse, at the city of Wheeling, at eleven o'clock a.m., this day.

The Convention was called to order by Chapman J. Stuart of Doddridge, who nominated as temporary chairman John Hall, of Mason.

W. B. Hall was chosen and assumed the chair.

W. H. Caldwell, of Marshall, moved the appointment of J. C. Craiger, of Wheeling, temporary Secretary.

Mr. Craiger was appointed and entered upon the discharge of his duties.

P. G. Van Winkle, of Wood, presented a roll of the members, made out from returns received at the Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Van Winkle. The roll was called and ordered to be printed. The roll was ordered to be returned. The roll was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Van Winkle. The whole number returned was 115.

Mr. Van Winkle. I now move that the rules of the June convention be adopted as the rules of this convention, and that a committee of five be appointed to inquire and report whether any amendment to them is necessary.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. Van Winkle. I would further move, sir, that a committee be appointed to nominate suitable persons for the permanent officers of this convention, which would include not only the President and Secretary, but clerks, keepers and surgeons also.

Mr. Van Winkle. The Committee would also indicate, probably, what officers would be required. I apprehend that would be the best way to proceed in reference to it. I believe that is the usual mode. I suppose a committee of nine would do.

Mr. Stuart of Doddridge. It strikes me, sir, that this committee is unnecessary. It is unusual, as far as my experience goes. I think it is proper the motion to be made now is that the convention proceed to elect their permanent officers. I see no necessity for appointing a committee. We may as well engage in the election of our permanent officers at once. Any person can suggest. I know that has been the usual adopted in former conventions in Virginia—the last two at least. I believe in our Convention in June, we, perhaps, appointed a committee.

Mr. Van Winkle. Well, sir, it strikes me we have come here together, many of us strangers to each other, and have not been here long enough to get acquainted, and it seems to me the intervention of a committee would be peculiarly appropriate in a case of this kind. I should hardly be willing to go into an election to-day in the five hours meeting, but as I before stated, I am not all members; the convention can decide it.

Mr. Willey. I suppose the object of the member from West Virginia is not to preclude the nomination of others than those nominated by the committee.
Mr. Van Winkle. O no.
Mr. Whitley. If that be the case I cannot very well see myself what would be required by referring it to a committee. It is true we are strangers to each other, and by a little friendly conference may arrive at better conclusions than we could be a haste manner here. I concern with the gentleman from Bodbridge, however, that it is not usual in bodies of this kind to resort to expedients of that description. It is immaterial with me, provided the action of the committee is not final but leaves the court clear to put other persons in competition if any member should see fit to do so.

Mr. Whitley. It may be that there will be some contested seats here. Would it not be better first to arrange that matter by appointing a Committee on Credentials, they have not all responded to their names here. Do not that matter be examined into first?

Mr. Whitley. I hope Mr. President, we will, after these preliminary matters, have a recess till the afternoon; and then I think we will be prepared to go into a permanent organization and select all the officers necessary. I think it would be a waste of time to spend two days in the organization of a body no larger than the present one.

The motion to raise the committee was not agreed to.

Mr. Sinsel. I move that there be appointed a committee of five on Credentials and Contested seats.

The motion was agreed to, and the Chair named the following gentlemen to compose the Committee:

Mr. Van Winkle. If the Chair please, I desire the appointment of another Committee; and with a view that we are as recently come together, I will make the motion now; and if it is the pleasure of the Convention to have the committee appointed, the Chair can take some till the assembling in the afternoon to select names and can then announce them. I move, sir, that a committee, say of nine, be appointed, to report the best method of bringing before the Convention such provisos to be inserted in the constitution as may be proposed. It is expected that the committee will report the business that is to come before the Convention, assigning each matter to an appropriate Committee.
