NEWS AND NOTES

HP & PHSY
Develop Historic Sites

The New England Historic and Preservation Society has received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to support the development of a new site in Massachusetts. The site will focus on the history of the region's colonial past and will include exhibits and interactive displays. The site is expected to open in 2023.

Division of Tourism Marks Civil War Trails

The National Park Service has announced a new initiative to promote the Civil War Trails, a network of historic sites and landmarks in the Northeast. The initiative includes a new website, a series of educational workshops, and a mobile app to help visitors explore the sites.

HP Welcomes Three New Staff People

The Society has announced the appointment of three new staff members. Anna Smith, a historian, will be responsible for developing new educational programs. David Lee, a conservationist, will focus on preserving historic sites. Sarah Johnson, a fundraiser, will be responsible for developing new fundraising initiatives.

In the News

The Society has released a new report on the state of historic sites in the Northeast. The report indicates that many sites are at risk due to budget cuts and lack of funding. The Society is calling for increased support from state and federal governments to ensure the preservation of these important sites.
