8. Statement of Significance

Applicable National Register Criteria
(Mark "X" in one or more boxes for the criteria qualifying the property for National Register listing.)

- x - A Property is associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history.

----- B Property is associated with the lives of persons significant in our past.

- x - C Property embodies the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction or represents the work of a master, or possesses high artistic values, or represents a significant and distinguishable entity whose components lack individual distinction.

----- D Property has yielded, or is likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.
The Hamilton House is an 1893 farmhouse situated in the hills of Nicholas County. The property sits on the north side of State Route 39 approximately 75 yards from the roadway. Peters Creek parallels the roadway and there is a small parking area off SR 39. A small dirt lane leads to the house and the rental property immediately behind the home. The rental property is not within the property boundaries. Flagstones lead from the lane to the porch steps. Trees surround the property.

The simple one-story home remains unaltered since 1936 when an eight foot addition was added to the east end. The house has original clapboard siding and a corrugated metal roof with intersecting gables. Resting on stone and brick piers, lattice work covers the crawl space across the front facade. The side foundation, however, is stone while the rear of the house is built against the hillside with a low stone foundation.

The front, or south facade, has an off center gable end and a centered porch with a shed roof. The porch rail has a unique wood cut-out design with four support posts. There are two doors on the porch, both with four panels, and a 6/6 double-hung wood sash window between the doors. All other windows on the house are the same with the exception of a pair of windows on the east gable end, which are 2/2 double-hung sash. There is a small off-centered brick chimney for the parlor fireplace.

The rear of the house also has an off center gable end. To the left of this is a small recessed porch with a window. There are two doors on the side walls of the porch. One, with two panels, leads to a storage room. The other, a plank door, leads into the kitchen.

The interior, like the outside of the house, has very simple woodwork. The walls are covered with plaster in three of the rooms, but in the kitchen and parlor are the original plank walls. Also in the parlor is a plank closet door situated next to a fireplace. With a hearth of stone and lined with brick, the fireplace has a simple decorative wooden mantle.

Each room has original wood floors with exception of the east bedroom (archive room) which was replaced in 1936 when the addition was added. This addition expanded the room by eight feet to create a larger bedroom. The front bedroom window was moved to be centered on the front facade. The trim in this room is also more elaborate than the rest of the house with a simple projecting molding over the doors and windows.

Summary:
The Hamilton House is a simple farmhouse typical of other farmhouses in Nicholas County. It has the original wooden siding and windows and the interior has wooden floors, plank walls, and paneled doors.
Statement of Significance

The Hamilton House is significant under Criterion A for Agriculture and its association with the rural agricultural subsistence farm prevalent in Nicholas County during the period of 1893-1936. Previous historic resource surveys in the county (1985-1997) have identified other agricultural related sites, but none this closely related to Summersville, the County Seat. The house is also significant under Criteria C for Architecture, and is typical of small farmhouses in Nicholas County.

Martin Hamilton built the house after coming to the area during the Civil War conflict. He was born 18 October 1856 at Fincastle, Botetourt County, VA to James Robert and Eleanor V. Hamilton who had seven other children. The family left Virginia when Martin was a small boy, traveling by wagon with his father's cousin, Archibald Kessler, his wife, Anna Peck, and two slaves. They purchased property in the Summersville area of Nicholas County where James Hamilton became owner of a general store.

In 1880, Martin married Hannah Remely and lived near his parents, farming the land and working in his father's store. In 1893 they purchased 63.4 acres of land west of Summersville and built a home for their family of six children. This building was a modest one story cottage of four rooms. The Hamilton's youngest child, Mary Gladys, was born there in 1903. When the farm buildings were completed, there was a large barn on the knoll behind the house and a large apple orchard surrounding it. Behind the house was a coal house, a granary and a chicken house. In the bottom land near the road there was a two-story barn with a hay loft for cattle and horses. A garden was also located in this area. The home faced the former Weston to Gauley Bridge Turnpike, which was still a main road through Nicholas County in the late 19th century.

The architecture of the home is typical of other farmhouses in Nicholas County. It is simple in design and materials, constructed of exterior wood siding and using wood for some of the interior walls. Although the home was enlarged by eight feet on one side, the change in the front windows balanced the home. The porch on the front is well proportioned and features the cutout railing typical in rural West Virginia. The rear porch off the kitchen provides shelter and is nestled between two rooms.

Typical of the Nicholas County farm family of the time, the six Hamilton children grew up sharing responsibility and learning to work. They assisted with such chores as feeding livestock and poultry, milking cows, planting, harvesting and preserving fruits and vegetables, hoeing corn and hauling hay shocks with horses. They all received a good education, starting at the one-room Thornton School west of their home. They became professional people and useful citizens/living mainly in the Summersville area of Nicholas County. Hannah Hamilton was privileged to a good education and she inspired her children to higher learning to support and educate the family. Martin Hamilton supplemented their income by delivering mail from Summersville to Gauley Bridge which at that time was a two-day journey. He traveled in a horse-
Hannah Hamilton died in 1915 and Martin remained at home with four children in his care. Daughter Albina resigned a teaching position to be home with the family, caring for her father until his death in 1927. Albina remained on the farm until 1935. Sister, Gladys Hamilton Means had obtained a 3/6 interest in the farm and moved back with her husband Bill who worked in Summersville. Timber was allowed to grow on most of the acreage and was harvested in the 1960s. When Gladys died in 1980, the property was left to the Hamilton heirs who donated the house to the Nicholas County Historical and Genealogical Society in 1985. Family members still retain the land associated with the farm. Renovations were made to the home within two years for use as a museum and genealogical library.

Agriculture
When Martin Hamilton started farming on 68 acres of land in 1893, Nicholas County was about 50% cleared land and had a population of approximately 10,000. A large majority of the population was engaged in farming and cultural pursuits. Principal crops were: corn, wheat, hay, oats, potatoes, buck wheat, tobacco and rye with most family farms producing apples and other fruits. The 1898 Agriculture Report lists the following livestock in order of importance: horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. Poultry and poultry products were a growing industry and chickens were grown on almost every family farm. The Hamilton’s raised chickens and turkeys, with both producing eggs. It is not known if they sold them locally, but the fowl were used for home consumption.

By 1920, 35% of the county was used for farmland. There were 4,009 farms averaging 92 acres each. The population had reached 20,717. The 1930 census shows a decrease in farms, with 3,985 and more farmers were becoming part-time farmers as they found employment in the timber and coal industries. Timbering, the first to develop, now employed 14,105 and coal mining employed 19,299. By 1999, Nicholas County farms have decreased to about 500 and subsistence farming is a rarity. During the most significant period for the Hamilton House (1893-1927) agriculture was the most important occupation in Nicholas County.

Summary
The Hamilton farm with garden and farm crops, livestock and poultry was typical of the type of subsistence farming that once was instrumental in the settlement and development of Nicholas County. The Hamilton house represents an important period in Nicholas County history. Now owned and operated by an active organization and dedicated to the preservation of Nicholas County heritage, the museum houses collections reflecting the life of the average Nicholas County farm family at the turn of the century.
