Name: Eleanor Gay
Street & Number: 116 Second Street
City or Town: Elkins
State: WV
Zip: 26241
Located near Elkins’ downtown commercial district, Dr. John C. Irons’ home is on the east side of Second Street on a rectangular lot. Trees line this side city street and carriage steps once stood at the curb of the home.

The two story Italianate home has drop wood siding, brick foundation and a T-shape plan with rear one story addition. The home has a low pitched gable end to the side with a two story projecting angled bay. The bay was added c. 1911 and has 1/1 double-hung wood sash windows. A porch is recessed and has Doric wooden columns. The windows and doors on the home have angled wooden window hoods and 2/2 double-hung sash openings. The hoods and side blocks have a pierced design. The front doorway has a transom, while the door has a large center pane of glass with a bead trim. Above and below the glass are small panels, a lower square panel has a wreath design.

The rear of the home has triple windows on the first and second floor. The kitchen was extend a few feet during the rehabilitation of the home in 1995 with a one story low gable roof. The original two pane round arch door was retained as was the second floor storage area above the kitchen. The home has no basement, but rests on a brick foundation.

The interior has a central hall plan with spindle rail and landing. The home has wooden wainscoting on the first floor walls and wooden floors throughout the home. The hall doors on the first floor have interior transoms, and there are French doors between the two parlors. The rear parlor has built-in cupboards. The dining room has a fireplace with the mantel having a cutaway design.

The second floor has three bedrooms, bath, and steps from the landing lead to the storage room which has shelves around the perimeter. The doors have the cross four panel design, and a few have the original decorative hinges. The home has several early light fixtures with dropped multiple lights or single wall sconces.

On the rear of the property is a noncontributing garage built in 1995. The building is one story, single bay, wood siding with a gable asphalt roof.

The home is a simple but gracious Italianate design, with original exterior and interior features. Although altered in 1911 with the angled bay, new porch posts, and French interior doors, the home reflects a late nineteenth century/turn of the century residence. The extension of the kitchen on the rear of the home was only by a few feet and has not significantly altered the rear of the building.
The Irons Residence is significant under Criterion B for its association with Dr. John C. Irons, and his contributions under Medicine and Politics/Government. The property is also significant under Criterion C and Architecture, representing a well crafted Italianate home in Elkins. The period of significance is 1889 to 1911, when the home was owned by the Irons family.

The City of Elkins was laid out by Senator Henry Gassaway Davis and his associates as a planned community in the late 1880s. Linked to Davis’ industrial and commercial enterprises, the city was established to provide a link in getting the natural resources out of the area, and to be a center for the railroad. The city was incorporated in 1890 with Dr. John Colvin Irons as its first mayor.

Irons had moved to Elkins to practice medicine in 1888. He arrived with a group of mature business and professional men who came to cast their lot with the new city. They were active with the development of the city and became known as the 89ers. Many of them built beautiful homes along the avenues to show evidence of their success. In 1889, Dr. Irons purchased the lot on Second Street from Senator Davis and built his home in the Italianate style.

The two-story frame home has a small narrow front porch and front gable end to the side. The exterior is simple, but has pierced window hoods and an elaborate front entrance door. The interior has a central hall with the side rooms also having wainscoting. In various rooms are built-in cupboards, period lighting and a pierced fireplace mantel in the dining room.

Dr. Irons was born in 1852 in Monroe County. He graduated from the Hospital College of Medicine of Central University of Louisville, KY. He filled the position of Mayor for three terms during the 1890s. As the first mayor he was heavily involved in the initial organization of the town following its incorporation. He was also a member of the committee on public policy and legislation of the state body in 1906.

As a town doctor, Dr. Irons had an active practice out of his home. The hall may have served as a waiting area with his office in the front room. Locally he also served as president of the district school board and the City Board of Health. He was the first president of the Tri-County Medical Society. Irons was also a member of the state and national medical associations during the late 19th and early 20th century.

The Irons family left the Elkins area about 1911, before later returning to the city. Irons stayed active in local affairs until his death in 1931. The home was the under the ownership of another doctor, Dr. Solomon G. Moore until 1961. Moore also had his medical office in the home using the rear room. The home then passed to Moore’s daughter before being purchased by the current owners in the 1990s.

The home was the first residence of Dr. John Irons and his family following his move to Elkins as one of the original 89ers. A businessman with a busy medical practice, Irons also found time to serve the new and growing community of Elkins. As the first mayor, he undoubtedly faced many logistical problems following the town’s incorporation in 1890. His Italianate home has had slight alterations, but the details and materials are original.
