Film- Davis Bottom: Rare History, Valuable Lives

Discover the remarkable story of Davis Bottom, a diverse, tight-knit, working class neighborhood established near downtown Lexington after the Civil War. The program follows the development of the community from its establishment in the 1860s through 1890s, the second generation of residents from the 1900s through 1940s, and “Living Memories” which cover the 1950s through the present. A production of The Kentucky Archaeological Survey and The Kentucky Heritage Council. 1 hour

Second Saturday Film

Saturday, December 8, 1 and 3 pm

Secrets of the Valley: Prehistory of the Kanawha

The science of archaeology is blended with Native American traditions to create an introduction to the first inhabitants of the Kanawha Valley from the early hunting and gathering Paleo-Indian people through late prehistoric farmers who inhabited the land just before the arrival of European settlers. Based on excavations sponsored by the US Army Corps of Engineers at the Marmet Locks near Charleston, WV. 28 minutes

December at the Discovery Table

A Box for Small Treasures

Decorate a small box to hold a piece of jewelry – or perhaps a treasured present.

Additional craft activities will be available throughout the holiday season including decorating the upstairs hallway windows with hand-made paper snowflakes.
